

Reciprocal Reading

Our text this week is called...

Science in the News

Stop and Jot

What type of text do you think this is?

What clues are there?

Who might read this sort of text?

This week we will be looking at a science journal.

This type of text is non fiction.

CLARIFY: What is non fiction?

What is a science journal similar to?

What could an article in a science journal be about?

With your partner, read the text on the front cover of the science journal.

What is the title of the science journal?

What can we find out about inside?

What additional information can you find from the front cover?

Why did the editor choose this photograph for the front cover?

Section 1 - Who will read this aloud?

What are the missing words?

affirmed in- ion and dissent, see the Missing words?
s). license
the purchase of th

This hologram teacher can respond to students raising their _____

Who will be taught by 3D teachers?

What does the special system do?

Can you think of an alternative title for this article?

Hologram Teachers!

Stop and Jot

First impressions...

Things to include:

- Did you like the article?
- What else might we find out about?
- What do you want to know?

I really like the... language/ style.. because..

In this section we found out...

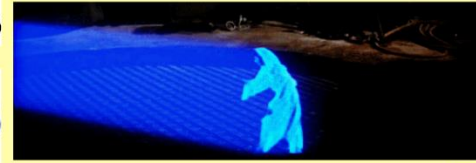

I know that... because..

This article seems really ... because...

I want to know...

Section 2 - partner read - 1 paragraph each

How does a hologram work?

Why is there a question in the text?
What effect does it have on the reader?

What are the pros and cons of a hologram teacher?

